

Organic Farming Development and Agricultural Institutions in Europe: A Study of Six Countries

Organic Farming in Europe:
Economics and Policy
Volume 9

Johannes Michelsen
Kennet Lynggaard
Susanne Padel
Carolyn Foster

The individual contributions in this publication remain the responsibility of the authors.

Organic Farming Development and Agricultural Institutions in Europe: A Study of Six Countries. / Johannes Michelsen, Kennet Lynggaard, Susanne Padel and Carolyn Foster.
Stuttgart-Hohenheim: 2001
(Organic Farming in Europe: Economics and Policy; 9)
ISBN 3-933403-08-1
ISSN 1437-6512

Edited by: Prof Dr Stephan Dabbert
*Department of Farm Economics, University of Hohenheim,
Germany*
Dr Nicolas Lampkin
Welsh Institute of Rural Studies, University of Wales, Aberystwyth, United Kingdom
Dr Johannes Michelsen
Department of Political Science and Public Management, University of Southern Denmark, Esbjerg, Denmark
Dr Hiltrud Nieberg
Institute of Farm Economics and Rural Studies, Federal Agricultural Research Centre, Braunschweig (FAL), Germany
Prof Dr Raffaele Zanoli
Dipartimento di Biotecnologie Agrarie ed Ambientali, University of Ancona, Italy

Technical
editor: Anna Häring

Published by: Prof Dr Stephan Dabbert
University of Hohenheim
Department of Farm Economics 410A
D-70593 Stuttgart
Germany
Tel: +49 (0)711 459-2541
Fax: +49 (0)711 459-2555
E-mail: ofeurope@uni-hohenheim.de
<http://www.uni-hohenheim.de/~i410a/ofeurope/>

© University of Hohenheim/Department of Farm Economics 410A, 2001. All rights reserved. No part of this publication may be reproduced, stored in a retrieval system, or transmitted, in any form or by any means, electronically, mechanically, by photocopying, recording or otherwise, without the prior permission of the copyright owners.

Cover design and layout by walter+von schickh, Ettlingen, Germany
Printed and bound in Germany by Hago Druck & Medien, Karlsbad-Ittersbach

Table of contents

	Acknowledgement	i
	Executive summary	i
	Table of contents	viii
	List of abbreviations	xiii
	List of tables	xvii
	List of figures	xvii
	List of contributors	xiii
1	Introduction	1
1.1	Theoretical considerations	4
1.1.1	Organic farming as a social movement	6
1.1.2	Organic farming and institutional interrelationships	7
1.1.3	Co-operation, competition and creative conflict	9
1.1.4	Organic farming and institutional change	13
1.2	Methodology and structure of the study	14
1.2.1	Collection and presentation of information	14
1.2.2	The analysis of the information obtained	17
2	Austria	19
2.1	Background	19
2.1.1	Main questions for the in-depth study	21
2.2	Institutional changes within the farming community	22
2.2.1	Organic farming associations and their interrelationships	22
2.2.2	Motivations and barriers to conversion	24
2.2.3	Knowledge, information and advice	24
2.2.4	The role of the regional agricultural chambers and their collaboration with the organic sector	25
2.3	Institutional changes within agriculture policy	27
2.3.1	Role of key actors in Austrian agricultural policy	28
2.4	Institutional changes within the food market	29
2.4.1	The Role of AMA-Marketing	30
2.4.2	Role of multiple retailers	30
2.4.3	The role of processing firms	31
		iii

2.4.4	Development in processing and marketing	32
2.5	Changes within the institutional setting	32
2.6	Summary and tentative conclusions	34
2.6.1	The institutional environment	34
2.6.2	Institutional change	39
3	Belgium	41
3.1	Background	41
3.1.1	Main questions for the in-depth study	42
3.1.2	General development and regional differences in the organic sector	43
3.2	Institutional changes within the farming community	44
3.2.1	Organic farming organisations and their interrelations	44
3.2.2	Organic and general farming interrelationships	46
3.3	Institutional changes within agriculture policy	48
3.3.1	The regional/federal administration interrelationship	49
3.3.2	The regional administration	50
3.4	Institutional changes within the food market	51
3.5	Changes within the institutional setting	51
3.6	Summary and tentative conclusions	53
3.6.1	The institutional environment	54
3.6.2	Institutional change	57
4	Denmark	60
4.1	Background	60
4.1.1	Main questions for the in-depth study	62
4.2	Institutional changes within the farming community	62
4.2.1	Overview of organic farming organisations and co-operation	63
4.2.2	General farmers' organisations	64
4.2.3	Cooperation between organic and general farmers' organisations	64
4.3	Institutional changes within agriculture policy	66
4.3.1	Political attention and support given to organic farming	66
4.3.2	Certification and inspection	68
4.4	Institutional changes within the food market	70
4.4.1	The history of the Danish organic milk market	71
4.4.2	An analytical view of the milk market history	74
4.5	Changes within the institutional setting	76
4.6	Summary and tentative conclusions	78

4.6.1	The institutional environment	80
4.6.2	Institutional change	83
5	Greece	85
5.1	Background	85
5.1.1	Main questions for the in-depth study	86
5.2	Institutional changes within the farming community	86
5.2.1	Organic farming organisations	86
5.2.2	The general farming community and organic farming	88
5.2.3	Research, training and advisory services	90
5.3	Institutional changes within agriculture policy	89
5.3.1	Policy formulation and implementation	90
5.3.2	Consequences and results of national policy	92
5.4	Institutional changes within the food market	93
5.4.1	Structure and development of the market	93
5.4.2	The domestic market for organic products, networking and marketing strategies	94
5.5	Changes within the institutional setting	95
5.6	Summary and tentative conclusions	96
5.6.1	The institutional environment	97
5.6.2	Institutional change	101
6	Italy	102
6.1	Background	102
6.1.1	Main questions for the in-depth study	103
6.2	Marche	104
6.2.1	Institutional changes within the farming community	104
6.2.2	Institutional changes within the agricultural policy	105
6.2.3	Institutional changes within the food market	107
6.2.4	Summary of institutional changes in Marche	107
6.3	Sicily	108
6.3.1	Institutional changes within the farming community	108
6.3.2	Other institutional changes	110
6.3.3	Summing up on institutional changes in Sicily	111
6.4	Marche, Sicily – and Italy	111
6.5	Elements of institutional change within the farming community	112
6.5.1	Changes in conventional and organic farming interrelationships	113
6.6	Elements of institutional change within agriculture policy	115

6.7	Elements of institutional change within the food market	117
6.8	Changes within the institutional setting	120
6.9	Summary and tentative conclusions	121
6.9.1	The institutional environment: Marche and Sicily	122
6.9.2	Institutional environment: Italy	123
6.9.3	Institutional change	126
7	United Kingdom	128
7.1	Background	128
7.1.1	Distribution of organic land and farm types	129
7.1.2	Main questions for the in-depth study	130
7.2	Institutional changes within the farming community	131
7.2.1	Organic producer associations and certification bodies	131
7.2.2	Attitudes towards organic farming in the general farming community	133
7.2.3	Information and advisory services	135
7.3	Institutional changes within agriculture policy	136
7.3.1	Organic Aid Scheme and Organic Farming Scheme	138
7.4	Institutional changes within the food market	139
7.4.1	Multiple retailers or supermarkets	140
7.4.2	Organic suppliers to the market	141
7.5	Changes within the institutional setting	142
7.6	Summary and tentative conclusions	143
7.6.1	The institutional environment	144
7.6.2	Institutional change	147
8	Institutional change and organic farming growth	149
8.1	The need for comprehensive explanations of organic farming growth	150
8.2	A comparative summary of country studies	152
8.2.1	Institutional interrelationships and organic sector size	154
8.2.2	Institutional change and organic sector size	155
8.2.3	Interrelationships between organic farming and general farming institutions	160
8.3	Searching for a path of successful organic farming growth	163
8.3.1	Three initial steps to establish an organic farming sector	163
8.3.2	Two complementary steps	165
8.3.3	The problem of adaptation	167
8.4	Indications of policy instruments in support of organic farming growth	169
8.4.1	Establishing an organic farming sector	170

8.4.2	Establishing an adaptive institutional environment	172
9	References	175