

Table of contents

Abstract	iii
Table of contents	v
Acronyms	vii
Acknowledgements	xi
1. Introduction	1
2. Participatory Guarantee Systems	5
2.1. Definition, origins and evolution of PGS	5
2.1.1. Definition and philosophy of PGS.....	5
2.1.2. The birth of organic certification and the origin of PGS.....	6
2.1.3. Theoretical roots: the economic rationale of quality certifications in the agri-food system	9
2.1.4. PGS today: current data and experiences	14
2.2. Common features and functioning of the PGS	17
2.2.1. The PGS concept and its basic elements	17
2.2.2. The PGS process and the functioning of the guarantee system	20
2.3. PGS and other organic guarantee systems	25
2.3.1. PGS and third-party certification (TPC)	25
2.3.2. PGS and Internal Control Systems.....	26
2.3.3. PGS and self-claim	27
2.3.4. Strengths and weaknesses of different guarantee systems.....	28
2.4. Potential costs and benefits of PGS: a brief review of impact studies	29
2.4.1. Evaluation of MASIPAG (Philippines): the effects of a farmers-led approach	29
2.4.2. Evaluation of ECOVIDA: the long-standing success of the Brazilian experience....	33
2.4.3. Evaluation of Red Mexicana de Tianguis y Mercados Orgánicos: comparison with Third-Party certification	38
2.4.4. Broader comparative analysis: the role of social processes and collective action	41
2.4.5. Review of the main costs and internal challenges	44
2.5. How to promote and support PGS development	47
2.5.1. International support and the challenge of recognition	47
2.5.2. Policy options for PGS support	49
2.5.3. Recent developments and future outlook	54
3. Participatory Guarantee Systems in Kenya and East Africa	56
3.1. Development and current status of organic agriculture in East Africa	57
3.1.1. Overview of certified organic agriculture in East Africa.....	57
3.1.2. Non certified organic agriculture and agro-ecological approaches	59
3.2. PGS development in East Africa	62
3.2.1. The development of the East African Organic Product Standards and the birth of the Kilimo Hai Mark	63
3.2.2. Main organic assurance systems and the birth of participatory certification	67
3.2.3. The functioning of the participatory guarantee	69
3.2.4. Regional trends of PGS in East Africa	73
3.3. Participatory certification in Kenya	76
3.3.1. Introduction.....	76
3.3.2. Institutional landscape and policy frameworks.....	84
3.3.3. PGS development in Kenya: trends and experiences.....	89
3.3.4. Motivating factors and common characteristics of Kenyan PGSs.....	97

3.3.5. Main challenges and opportunities for upscaling	102
4. Materials and methods.....	106
4.1. Research objectives.....	106
4.2. The qualitative research process.....	107
4.3. Research instruments.....	109
4.3.1. Semi-structured in-depth interview	109
4.3.2. Focus group discussion	111
4.4. Data collection and analysis	113
4.4.1. The sampling process	113
4.4.2. Data collection	115
4.4.3. Data preparation and analysis.....	117
5. MACODEV PGS and the case of Ogiek Honey.....	121
5.1. The Case study area	122
5.1.1. The Nakuru County	122
5.1.2. The Mau Forest.....	127
5.1.3. The Ogiek community.....	132
5.2. Mariashoni Community Development (MACODEV) CBO	134
5.2.1. The Birth of MACODEV	134
5.2.2. Institutional support and the establishment of the Presidium	137
5.2.3. Organization and financial situation of the group.....	140
5.3. Results.....	144
5.3.1. Main objectives, stakeholders involved and product range	145
5.3.2. The structure and functioning of the guarantee system.....	158
5.3.3. Impact results of the PGS: costs and benefits of participation	172
5.4. Discussion.....	183
6. Conclusions	187
References.....	194
Websites.....	207
Appendix 1: Differences between PGS and other organic assurance schemes	208
Appendix 2: Organic agriculture in Africa and East Africa	220
Appendix 3a: East African Criteria for PGS approval (2013)	225
Appendix 3b: East African Procedure for PGS approval (2013)	228
Appendix 4: PGS trends in Sub-Saharan Africa	233
Appendix 5: List of research partners	235
Appendix 6: Interview guide.....	237
Appendix 7: Guide for the focus group discussion	242
Appendix 8: MACODEV PGS standards, bylaws and membership criteria	244